Senior Marine Consultant

Captain Jim Ewart, a Canadian certified Master Mariner, brings to SILA a broad range of marine experience including over 20 years of active command service on ocean going vessels that routinely operate in northern ice infested waters. Jim has many years of marine related business experience in the private and public sectors and is a former lead instructor with a Canadian professional marine training centre. Since joining SILA, he has worked directly on several Arctic deep water port concept papers and northern marine transportation issues.

Jim also has considerable experience with marine programs, nautical education development, commercial and recreational marine technical writing and classroom course delivery. He has also published several Transport Canada accredited marine training manuals in use today by professional seafarers.
